B.Com - Bachelor of Commerce

Bachelor of Commerce is the full form of B.Com. It is a three-year undergraduate program that has rebranded itself as more job-skill-oriented with a wide range of specializations.

Bachelor of Commerce (B.Com) is the most common undergraduate degree program in the country. This course is completed after the 12th grade. For your 10+2, you must select a stream such as commerce to continue in the stream by selecting B.Com. However, students from other fields are also permitted to pursue a B.Com, as this subject offers several opportunities for additional education and job advancement.

The B.Com degree program is structured into three years of study. If you wish to pursue Honors, you must choose a specialization each year.

One of the primary benefits of a B.Com degree is the ability to get a suitable job and begin a career immediately after graduation. After completing a B.Com course from a recognized institute, students can pursue studies in teaching, advertising, journalism, mass communication, design, law, and other fields. You can also pursue postgraduate degrees such as M.com, MBA, MFA, MIB or a PGDM. What you study in your B.Com degree serves as a solid foundation for the above programs.

B.Com Eligibility Criteria

The following are the B.Com qualifying criteria:

- Candidates must have completed Commerce courses in Class 11 and 12, including Accountancy, Business Studies, Math/optional subject, and/or Economics.
- Candidates must have a minimum aggregate of 50% in the 10+2 standard.
- Private colleges can provide immediate admission regardless of the candidate's grade point average.
- Other 12th-standard graduates from other streams may also apply at the option of the university and college following a few conditions.

Higher Studies - What is the Best Course to Take After B.Com?

In today's environment, a bachelor's degree is no longer sufficient for a successful professional start. Receiving high-level training or expertise in the sector of your choice is essential for gaining an advantage over the competition. To develop one's aptitude and comprehension in the area, one should enroll in academic or professional courses.

Master of Commerce (M.Com): The bulk of students take M.Com after B.Com. It is comparable to a more advanced form of B.Com in that you will study the key commerce courses in depth.

Master of Business Administration(MBA): If you want to do business or work in a managing position in a company, an MBA is an excellent choice. The reputation of the college where you are studying, on the other hand, will surely have an impact on your career. It is a highly sought-after two-year curriculum. You will have several networking and career opportunities.

Masters in Applied Economics: If you are interested in economics and want to study it further, a Master's in Applied Economics is an option. This course emphasizes economics, management, and finance specialties.

Masters in Finance or Accountancy: This is the program for you if you want to further your studies in finance or accounting. Finance's technical components, as well as quantitative approaches, will be presented. The time frame will be between 1-2 years.

Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA): ACCA is recognized as one of the most distinguished organizations in the world. It is growing so quickly that the majority of students choose this subject. It consists of 14 exams and lasts around two years.

Business Accounting and Taxation (BAT): If you wish to obtain hands-on experience in Accounting and Taxation, this course is needed. This one-year study will prepare you for a career in taxes and accounting.

Cost Accounting Course: The cost department is in charge of the overall budget, cost, and profitability of a wide range of goods, activities, and services. Profit planning, cost management, pricing, cost variation analysis, and a variety of other subjects will be covered.

Commerce is a term which comprises the trading of something of economic value such as goods, services, information or money between two or more entities. Simply put it is a division of trade or production which deals with the exchange of goods and services from producer to final consumer. Commerce acts as the central mechanism which drives capitalism and certain other economic systems.

But before any material is to become saleable it needs Commercialization or commercialization. Thus Commercialization consists of the process of transforming something into a product, service or activity which one may then use in commerce.

The commerce study generally includes elementary banking and accountancy, general commercial knowledge. Some other study also includes theoretical economics including money and exchange. But the main part of the course is devoted to subjects like Business Organization, Secretarial Practice, Commercial Geography, Commercial Statistics and Mercantile Law, Accountancy /Banking /Transport.

In the matter of employment a good number of candidates are offered positions, through campus recruitment, even before their results are declared. Career opportunities are ample in the fields of banking and finance, general management, civil services and academics.
